To Whom It May Concern:

Re: The Projects Group

The Sid Richardson Foundation has employed The Projects Group on several occasions. Most recently, we embarked upon a project to totally renovate and restore our building including our Western Art Museum and offices for the Foundation. This was a $6 million project which involved major demolition, reconstruction of the basic structure, quite specialized work in the museum, and substantial reequipping and refurnishing the facility.

They do outstanding work in evaluating the project, providing very accurate estimates of costs, and interacting with architects, the contractor, subcontractors and suppliers. They have been very prompt in their own work and in assisting others in maintaining work schedules. There is no question in my mind about their having saved us a substantial amount of money and have been of great assistance in bringing the project to completion on time and within budget limitations.

I am very happy to recommend them for future projects.

Sincerely,

Vallean Wilkie, Jr.
Executive Vice-President
